

NOVEMBER 2019 NEWSLETTER

It's getting cold out there! Please be sure to dress your child appropriately for all kinds of weather as we go outside everyday.

It was so great to get to sit and talk with most of you during parent/teacher conferences. Thank you for taking the time to meet.

Reflections on October: Last month we explored pumpkins. We cut one open, named the parts and carved a Jack-O-Lantern. We also explored parts of a skeleton, naming the different bones in the body. This year's Kiss the Pig was a lot of fun. Thank you for the generous donations. Keep a look out on the classroom door to see what classroom materials are purchased with the donated money.

November: This month we will continue to look at the changes going on around us as temperatures drop and leaves continue to fall. Over the last few months we have systematically been increasing the difficulty of materials and our students have shown great responsibility with these challenging works. In Practical life we will be adding more elaborate water works such as washing a chair or making soap bubbles, works that involve many steps to complete. In math we are working with the bead stair and recognizing the bead bar that corresponds with the number. We are also working on numbers 11-19. We will also explore the concept of friendship. What makes a friend? Are we still friends even though I am playing with someone else?
